Roadmap to Job Search Success with LinkedIn

LinkedIn helps job-seekers navigate successful paths to their dream jobs through exploration tools and mentorship.

Explore All Your Possibilities

A big challenge facing job seekers is knowing what types of jobs to search for — or even which ones exist. Enter LinkedIn's new career exploration pages. Browse different careers within job functions (e.g. accounting jobs or education jobs), and from there research top cities, companies and see what opportunities are available.

The screenshot shows the LinkedIn 'Engineering Jobs' exploration page. At the top, there's a navigation bar with 'Jobs', 'Companies', and 'Salaries'. Below this, the page title 'Engineering Jobs' is displayed with a subtitle 'Job titles and descriptions' and a count of '798,604 Engineering Jobs'. A section titled 'Browse 14 types of engineering jobs' lists six categories: Engineer, Electrical Engineer, Civil Engineer, Technician, Software Developer, and Hardware Engineer, each with a brief description. Below this is a link to 'See 8 more engineering job titles'. The 'Popular engineering jobs' section features a grid of job listings, each with a company logo, job title, location, and hiring status. The listings include: 1. IRE: Php Developer, Hired, Park Ridge, Illinois, 1 week ago. 2. immchnolo: Software Developer, Summit Technology Services, Inc., Rochester, New York, 4 weeks ago. 3. macropac: Automation Engineer, Macropace Technologies, Bellevue, Washington, 4 weeks ago. 4. IRE: Data Scientist, Hired, Walnut Creek, California, 4 weeks ago. The bottom row shows the start of three more listings with logos for IRE, a blue logo, and a green logo.

Looking for engineering jobs? LinkedIn surfaces popular job titles and listings as well as top cities and companies within job functions.

There are twenty-five job functions waiting for you to explore, making it easy to research the industry you want to break into. Plus, you can simply toggle to Jobs, Companies, and Salaries, so you can be fully equipped to figure out your next steps.

Human Resources Legal Consultant Jobs Explore top cities, companies, and open jobs.

Human resources (HR) legal consultants ensure companies are meeting legal and regulatory obligations when it comes to personnel. The role of an HR compliance manager is divided into two realms: policy development and enforcement. From a development standpoint, HR legal consultants bring their expert knowledge of human resources regulations to build out a company's HR policies on matters such as minimum wage, vacation, leaves, insurance, and labor conditions. On the enforcement side, HR legal administrators conduct audits, identify risks or issues, work to resolve challenges, and actively respond to disputes initiated by employees or former employees. Where required, human resources legal consultants will fill out and file compliance-related documentation and submit it to any regulatory agencies. HR legal consultants also advise upper management on potential risks and legal threats based on their operating standards. To become a human resources legal advisor, you'll need training and education in both human resources and employment law. A law degree may not be required for HR legal consultants, as this role often works with a company's internal or external lawyers.

Narrow your search for legal jobs to a specific title and research available opportunities.

But finding the perfect job is just one part of the equation. Breaking into an industry can be intimidating, especially if you aren't quite sure where to begin. One of the best ways to start creating your roadmap to success is learning from those who have been already been in your shoes.

Get Career Advice from Industry Professionals

Mentorship is key to developing and sustaining a satisfying career and improving your professional life. However, knowing where to start is the tricky part. That's why LinkedIn launched Career Advice, a new feature connecting members across the LinkedIn network with one another for lightweight mentorship opportunities. Whether you need advice on your career path, best practices for a project you're working on, or even switching to a new industry, Career Advice can help you find and connect with the right person.

- More than 80% of professionals on LinkedIn have stated they either want to have a mentor or be one to others.
- Over 50% of those surveyed don't know where to begin, and more than one-third have a hard time finding the right mentor.

With more than 530 million professionals in the LinkedIn community, there is no other place where you can access such a wide range of knowledge, skills, and resources to help you reach your goals.

Getting started is easy! Just go to the dashboard on your LinkedIn Profile and find the Career Advice hub. From there, enter your preferences for the type of advice you're looking to receive, and LinkedIn's matching algorithm will recommend members based on your network connection preferences, mutual interests, and your specified industry. You'll be alerted whenever you are matched so you can send a message and start the conversation.

Bonus tip: Rock your resume with Resume Assistant from Microsoft and LinkedIn to help you craft a compelling resume directly within Word.
